DataStar (PRIV)

PRIV will allow Customer to populate and maintain a DataStar™ database for use within Customer's organization which combines DataStar content with external data. DataStar content may be delivered via Alerts or other method; external data may be uploaded by a web interface or ftp transfer. Customer will then have the power of searching content with the speed and precision of DataStar.

Customer will also have the option to include images and links to PDFs, spreadsheets and other files held locally on a PC. DataStar has mapped the field structure of its diverse database collection into a single, flexible format that allows you to combine documents from widely different sources.

Data in the Customer's Private DataBase

- DataStar Information – Archiving DataStar information in a PRIV database is governed by DataStar's Electronic Redistribution & ArchivingSM (ERASM) service. Customer must use the correct ERA commands with appropriate multiplier for the number of people that will be exposed to the data in the PRIV database. For more information about ERA, visit <http://library.dialog.com/era/>. Note: Copyright terms and conditions vary among database producers. To check these, begin the NEWS database and enter the command News-terms for an alphabetical list of databases, along with their terms and conditions.
- Information from Other Sources – By adding non-DataStar information to PRIV database whether from Customer's internal collections or external sources, Customer warrants that they have all rights necessary for such archiving.

Data may be uploaded to the file by designated manager user-id(s). These rights are given by the manager (administrator) of a particular PRIV. One PRIV can have as many manager ids as the customer wishes. If customers have a need for several PRIVs (e.g., they do not want to have articles about research in the same PRIV as articles about companies they can of course have several PRIVs but each is managed by another user-id). Each PRIV is accessible only to those DataStar userIDs that have been authorized.

Charges

Setup Fee – There is a one time setup fee of $5000.

Hosting Fee – Customer will be charged $1,100 per month per database for each month the database is hosted by Dialog.
